HIGHLIGHTS OF WORLD NEWS

Europe's war scare seems well under control today, due largely to the Stresa, Italy, conference from which have come several treaty proposals to insure the independence of Austria and make for non-aggression. Great Britain, Italy and France are the conferring powers. Adolph Hitler of Germany has agreed to sign non-aggression treaties.

Appropriations for Alabama schools will be increased $1,693,000 over this year, according to a bill that has support of the state administration and approval of the State Department of Education. It is a compromise between the amount previously asked by the education department and the amount the recess and finance committee thought adequate.

President Roosevelt is determined to carry through the cotton reduction program along present lines in spite of oppositionists who claim the program lays American business open to Japanese competition.

A trade war with Japan was threatened Sunday, according to Japanese newspapers, because of America's "subversive" trade policy with South America.

Administration forces are renewing their fight for passage of the social securities bill in the House of Representatives. The administration faces strong opposition on the labor bill now before the Senate.

Thousands of homesteaders have been driven from their homes in the middlewest by a dust storm of long duration, which has swept up the dry soil and desiccated wheat and carried it away. The wheat crop this year has been definitely lost. Efforts are being made to obtain federal aid for the removal of drouth-area residents to better land.

Although the strike situation generally has calmed down, there are occasional sporadic walk-outs protesting treatment of workers. A hurried agreement was reached in Washington last week between employes and employers to circumvent a strike threatened in the Akron rubber plants.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY

R. L. CROW

Mr. R. L. Crow, Financial Secretary for the State Teachers College, is very efficient in his duties. He is also courteous in every respect even though he is not very talkative. Mr. Crow is a native of Jacksonville, being a member of one of the pioneer families. He is a loyal member of the Presbyterian Church and is interested in all of the activities of the town and community. Mr. Crow is an active member of the Masonic Lodge and also the Odd Fellow Lodge. Legislative Group Visits Jacksonville

Dr. Daugette Introduces Sub-Committee Members

The assembly program opened with the singing of the state song, ALABAMA. Dr. Daugette introduced the members of the Committee and asked them to have a few words with us. The first member to be introduced was Mr. St. John, a former school teacher himself. Mr. St. John said that it was a great pleasure for him to be here to speak to such a fine student body. He said that Alabama had been lacking in leadership and that they are looking to the colleges for this leadership. Much of the guidance of the state must come from the student-body of Jacksonville. People of Alabama are ignorant about the schools, they have been walking around like blind people to the needs of the schools of Alabama and to the needs of the youths of the state for an education. The people of today want good teachers for their children and we are sure that Jacksonville State Teachers College is doing its share in furnishing the good teachers for our children.

The second member of the committee introduced by Dr. Daugette was Mr. Kirby of Jackson County. He expressed his pleasure at being able to be here with the students and talk to them, and for them to see him. He told the students that while they looked to their families at home for support not to also forget the taxpayers that made it possible for them to attend school in the State of Alabama. He said that when the roll was called in the legislature for the appropriation bill that we could count on his vote to be "yea." He said: "I am going to vote for you. The beauty of young manhood and young womanhood far surpasses that of nature." He made this remark after telling us of the beauties of the gardens of the South. He said: "Go forth and make men and women that will be able to carry on through adverse conditions as well as through the sunny side of life."

Mr. Sargeant was the third speaker. He was not a member of the committee but has done state supervisory work for many years. He told of the many con-

BACH AND HANDEL

This year we are celebrating the 250th anniversary of two of the greatest men in music, Johann Sebastian Bach and George Fredrick Handel, born within a month of each other, Bach on March 21, Handel on February 23, 1685. It is interesting to compare these two musical geniuses because of their close likeness yet vast differences. Both were organists and masters of polyphony, (the weaving of two or more melodies together at the same time) Bach stayed in his own country while Handel went to Italy and England. Bach married; Handel remained a bachelor. Bach was humble, Handel, essentially arrogant; to Bach, applause meant little, to Handel, it was life itself. Where Handel was dramatic and heroic, writing even instrumental music in a vocal fashion, Bach was religious and spiritual, yet lightened by bits of humor and satire, writing vocal music in an instrumental fashion.

Handel outlived Bach by nine years, but both died of apoplexy after becoming blind, Handel in 1759 and Bach in 1750.

The great critic, Rockstro, called Bach the "Albrecht Durer of German music", and then adds, "If the one is a Durer, the other (Handel) is a Rubens."

DON'T BE CHEAP

Whatever else you do, don't be cheap. Let your foremost thoughts be: to move on high levels, to make a good name your chief working capital, and to let nothing mar your prestige. Endeavor to have it grow in all ways and always. Above all don't cheapen yourself.

Let the comments of what people think and say of you concern you. It is possible that a certain amount of that censure is just, especially if too many are commenting. Stop and analyze yourself. Be a person of refinement; use the language of a gentleman; and be civil as well as civilized. Stubbornness is the nature of the mule; combativeness, the bull-dog; and revenge, the tiger. Let them have it, you're human.

A good name will certainly make you reach your goal.

A good superintendent recognizes the standards of a noble profession. A highminded teacher is the only one that people want. Every person can be what he seems to be.

Stand on your own feet, don't expect others to do for you what you can do for yourself. Be willing to help others as you would expect others to help you. Short cuts are dangerous things; never try to get something for nothing. Remember that you must pay a price for all you do and acquire; physically, morally, and economically. The payday comes seldom.

You are judged by what people know about you. They see you at work; they note the results of your labor; they are conscious of your ideals; they notice the way you dress; and they know your habits, your associates, your likes and dislikes, and your tendencies. In all of these ways you may win admiration and respect. If you are weak in one or two of these traits, it cheapens the rest of you.

Above all—establish a reputation for absolute honesty. Keeping your word and being dependable means much. Do both. You may be an inspiration to others by doing your work with precision and thoroughness. Be your own severest critic. Be loyal—to your noblest impulses, to your conscience, to your father and mother, to your tasks, to your school, to duty and to destiny.

WHAT THE PEOPLE EXPECT OF TEACHERS

An interesting study has recently been made in Alabama to determine what is expected of a teacher. A questionnaire was sent to 130 superintendents and principals for their reactions and also the reaction of the patrons on certain topics. It was found from the replies that 86% of the principals and superintendents and 92% of the patrons object to smoking among women teachers. It was found that 95% of the people object to women teachers having dates with high school boys. 95% also object to men teachers having dates with high school girls. It was also found that 61% of the people object to teachers attending public dances. It seems from these figures that the students who are preparing to enter the teaching profession should begin immediately to cultivate certain habits which will meet the approval of the parents of children whom they expect to teach. Those people who are now slaves of bad habits should begin to break themselves of such habits as will not meet the approval of their future patrons. This will add greatly to the success of beginning teachers. There are quite a number of other minor things which are mentioned in this study to which from twenty-five to fifty percent of the parents object. 45% object to lady teachers riding with their dates at night. 37% object to the teachers leaving the communities on week-ends. 59% object to dating on school nights. 25% object to the teachers playing cards. It behooves every person to try in every way possible to make a success of his work. These things are called to the attention of the students with the hope that they may serve a helpful purpose.

Give Mr. Westbrook credit for a good gag: Miss Russell had been expressing her preference in headstones.

Evelyn: "I want a marble headstone at my head when I die."

Westbrook: "The only thing you'll have at your head when you die will be a pair of horns!"

I think that the past year has been the most memorable one in the motion picture industry. In what one year have you seen pictures to compare with "We Live Again", "The Count of Monte Cristo", "One Night of Love", "The Barretts of Wimpole Street", "Catherine the Great", "Cleopatra", "Lives of a Bengal Lancer", and scores of others presented by Mr. Townley in the past seven months? Mr. Townley announces that the best is not past. Such highlights as "Mississippi", "Tarzan and His Mate", "Broadway Bill", "Viva Villa", "Vanessa" and "David Copperfield" have already been scheduled. Mr. Townley has cooperated wonderfully with the college by his policy of censoring the worthless and obtaining worthwhile pictures.

I have been accused of ulterior motives in accompanying Dr. Calvert on an expedition some time ago. If such was the case the effort was in vain. You should see my last book report!

You make the comments:

Dr. Calvert: "How did you find Emerson?"

Brilliant Soph: "I just went to the card catalog and started in at 'E'."

Dr. Calvert: "That'll do."

Can you tie Skeet's answer when asked if Sanders has a tux? She asserted that she hadn't seen all his clothes!

The platinum is out! According to the latest reports from New York, the blond a la Harlow is out in the cold. The local heart-breakers must have sensed the change. "How mucha da henna rinse, Toni?"

Now that all the furore over the debate has subsided, a candid analysis of the decision is in order. The Morgans say that it was plenty close, but Oliver and Shipp had a slight edge. The Calhouns agree to the closeness, but give Love and Herndon a tiny preference. As a disinterested party, putting myself in the judges' place, a tie was the only possible decision under the circumstances. The only way I could have picked the winner would have been to roll "high dice", or flip a coin.

Biologists say that wars are inevitable. That the law of the survival of the fittest requires wars and plagues to keep the human race from deteriorating. Until comparatively recent times wars have served as a good medium for the thinning out of the population. In battles of sword and spear, the weakest of the soldiers fell first. In the hinterland famines and pestilences caused by war struck down the weakest first. In future struggles such will not be the case. A gas attack on New York City would strike down Jack Dempsey and Mayor La Guardia just as soon as a child in the charity ward of a hospital. Truly, the world changes!

Mr. and Mrs. J. Floyd Jackson, Alabama City, enjoyed attending the A. E. A. this year and speaking to all their Jacksonville friends.

Town Girls Club Gives Program Dance

The first social affair given by the newly organized Town Girls Club was a program dance on Saturday evening, April 6, at Bibb Graves Hall.

The room was beautifully decorated with dog-wood and the lights were dimmed with blue streamers. The music was furnished by a local orchestra. A floor show given by Mrs. Augusta Van McClendon's dancing class was an added attraction.

Dr. Gary Speaks to History Club

The History Club met Thursday evening at 6:30 in Bibb Graves Hall. Dr. Gary addressed the members of the club on the subject of "Communism in Russia."

Current events of much interest to all were given by several members of the club.

Several new members were voted into the club and plans for the social were made.

BRAINSTORMS

By HARRY HERNDON

Looking around I see our "studes" Some are polished, but some are crude.

Others have manners but some are boors.

Some of the faces cast bright reflections

But some of them are full of dejection.

Some feel at home, some are at sea I wonder which description applies to me.

Mae West is a Kentucky Colonel—Hurrah! For Kentucky!

In Yugoslavia, a carelessly dropped fuse in an outlying ammunition building caused an explosion in which two workers were killed and 100 others injured. I'll bet they thought Hitler's army had arrived.

An ex-soldier wrote to his senator: "I have a wife and three permanent disabilities." He's lucky, my dad has five children.

Henry Vance says that Alabama is still dry but it's "all wet." What about the remaining nine states?

An Italian scientist has discovered four "planetary masses" gravitating beyond Neptune. That's some more worry for future astronomy students.

Woe is me! I've just had to use my brain (I hope I did) on a psychology test.

The attitude of some students toward a test seems to be: "a head full of inspiration and a pocket full of information."

It's better to have loved and lost than to win a wife and then be bossed.

Japan seems to be profiting by American patriotism. At a recent Army Day observance in Atlanta, Ga., it was found that each tiny bit of red, white, and blue was marked, "Made in Japan."

Dan Hunter recommends "steel traps" to prevent students from making paths across the campus. Give him credit, it's his own idea.

G. Wadlington, of Memphis, Tennessee, a sculptor in ice, keeps his studio a storage vault at 18 degrees F. That's nothing, all last winter, I wrote English themes in my room when it was at least 10 degrees F.

Don Riggs, a husky 22-year-old boy of Kansas City, Mo., is working his way through State Teachers College at Pittsburg, Kansas, as a dressmaker. I hear that "Tiny" Powell has talent along that line.

One reason why I fail my tests is that the instructors ask me the same question on each quiz.

Under the spreading chestnut tree The college lovers stands, They evidently all agree "Ain't love grand."

Germany's able war-time General, Ludendorff, predicts another war in 1941. He says that the nations of the world want to rid themselves of Germany and Japan. You know, self-pity is sometimes tiresome to those who come in contact with it.

I hope that the newly chosen wife of Herman Goering, Germany's Red Knight, is capable of bossing him as he does his soldiers.

If you don't believe that Herbert Hoover and Al Smith are good politicians just look at their recent picture together. The foes of '28 are smiling broadly and are shaking hands. Well, at that its better than shaking fists at each other.

I've about reached the conclusion that the Dionne Quins' pictures appears in the papers about as often as President Roosevelt's.

But don't forget that there are five other children in the Dionne family. I wonder how they feel about all the publicity given to their sisters.

All men are created equal—they live and die.

Dryden said: "It is not my talent to engage in lofty trifles, or to swell my page with wind and noise." Folks, that's just exactly what I'm trying to do. There isn't so very much difference between Dryden and me after all.

Here's another quotation, Senator Douglas, at Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, said: "If I can't be president I can at least hold his hat." That lets me out, the freshmen class president doesn't even wear a hat.

Hoover is giving the "razzberries" to the N. R. A. Perhaps we'd better save them for the food shortage next year.

FROM 6:30 TO 7:30 AT WEATHERLY HALL

"Say, girls, we had better go out on the porch and get a breath of fresh air before it is too late 'cause it's almost twilight and you know what that means." Ah—there goes a boy. He dropped his pencil—

"Pick it up, but don't stop, young man," speaks up a young lady from the porch.

Someone has an idea, (strange things at Weatherly Hall.) "Mary, Mary, Mary Brewer, please come and play the piano." She begins with "Rain", plays it twice and someone suggests "Mandy." By this time they are all in the parlor, and several "girl couples" are dipping and sliding over the big open floor enclosed by four walls and called the parlor.

"Where is Miss Fordham?" asks someone, "I see some boys peeping in the window."

Then the window gets a rush, and sure enough there is Bottoms, Mitchell Dodd, Oliver, Murphy, Ackorage, and Lovett. "Better run, boys, for fear someone might think you are shooting dice and you might get campussed."

Ring-g-g-g—the telephone—can it be "Gander" calling "Cris" Goslin? or "Appie" calling "Olie"? or is it "Smithie" calling "Flossie"?—but alas, girls, it's all in vain—Porch is calling Kilgore.

WHY NOT BE ATHLETIC, GIRLS?

By PANSY THORNTON

Are you interested in life? If you are, you must do something to keep up your health. If you are not, then what are you living for? You have seen people in this world that look like a walking skeleton. Do you wish to do the same? No person with any ambition does.

What is your favorite sport? Do we have it here? If we haven't, let us know, and we will readily try to make improvements to provide for it.

Every girl in this school is assigned to one of the four athletic clubs, and the time is drawing near to determine who shall have the loving cup for the following year. Each club is beginning to organize new games for the following quarter. Why not come out and enjoy the games? It will not only help you, but your club. Surely, there is no one who would like to be on a losing team if they could help it.

If you do not like to play baseball, tennis or horseshoes—then let us know and we will try to arrange something that you do like to play. I think every girl is interested in these good sports. I am sure she would become interested if she attended the games. After a series of practices in these games, we will have a tournament.

So many of the new girls are interested in knowing about the letters and how they can get one. These letters are given to every girl who can come up to certain standards in athletics. These standards are listed in Miss Sellers' Physical Education room. What could you be more proud of than one of these pretty letters that signifies so much?

But what is physical education or athletics? Is it merely wearing the letters? It is the employment of all forces at one command for developing and keeping our bodies at their best. We want social and moral results as well as physical. In order to obtain these results we must learn and practice clean, wholesome sports, such as Jacksonville offers to enthusiastic lovers of athletics.

ARE YOU A FRIEND?

For several weeks I have been thinking about friends and friendships and have tried to formulate my idea of a true friend. A student passed down the corridor one day as we were strolling around, I inquired as to her name, they added "she's a friend of mine." When you call a person your friend, just what do you require of that person; and then, what does that person require of you? To have friends you must be a

LEND ME YOUR EARS

Emmett Baker was caught not empty-handed, but with a dish towel in his hand and wearing an embroidered apron. Where???? Ask him. You might also ask him if he remembers buying pink ruffling.

Who were the three "B's" from Simpson's looking under girls' beds in the dormitory one Sunday night?

Ask Harolyn Franklin and Ester Bryant to explain the song "Love Is the Sweetest Thing!"

Who is this man, a Senior, who is getting a few sly glances from a Freshman girl?

Can someone explain why Buddy Wilburne's mail has dropped off?

Misses Johnston and Griffith are in their second childhood; yours truly got a glimpse of them patting around in the mud—barefoot. We hope they didn't get toe itch.

Some of our prospective big league baseball players get nervous when their girls come on the field. Can the said players who can be so easily upset make the league?

Can Lynn Little "take it"? She evidently can. Have you seen the beloved Dusty with his new haircut and his new "specs"?

Dick McPherson must have had an Atlas Course. What's this I hear about his bravely carrying the lady-love across a stream? Tsh! Tsh! Such "doings!"

And then there is a certain "flirt" who has started wearing colored classes to keep from flirting—friend. Your friendship is the greatest gift that you can offer a person—provided you do not abuse the word, friend.

In thinking over your many acquaintances you can easily enumerate those persons whom you are most intimate with, whom you call—friend. Are these people honestly your friend, or do they "put up a front" in order to receive a personal gain by so doing? If you will consider your requirements that a person must fulfill to be called your friend you will find that you are soon able to enumerate them rapidly. I consider honesty the finest trait of friendship; without it there is no friendship. You must be able to face your friend with the truth, good or bad, and if she is your true friend she "can take it." Next to honesty I consider loyalty as an all-important trait.

No one wants a friend today that will tomorrow have forgotten that friendship ever existed and turned to someone else that at the time pleases his fancy. Be unselfish, this is to my mind the third important trait of friendship. Think of your friend first, then of yourself. After all, if you are able to please someone you love then you will find that you are happier yourself by so doing.

HONESTY, LOYALTY, and UNSELFISHNESS make the foundations for true friendship. As you look about you and discover that you do not have many friends then examine yourself, remember you too must BE a friend.

Have you ever been disappointed in your friend, someone you loved and trusted? This should make you more determined not to disappoint the ones that believe and depend on you. Examine yourself—ARE YOU A FRIEND?

A. gridiron teams to be played away from the campus; the first being with Union University, Jackson Tennessee, on September 27; Middle Tennessee Teachers College, Murfreesboro, Tennessee, on October 4; and Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., on October 12.

ditions that he had seen during his work over the state. He said that he was thoroughly in sympathy with the program that the committee was trying to put forward. He said that he was a strong believer in the Literary Societies and the good that they did for the boys and girls in college. He said that the training of public speaking was very valuable to a student and should not be neglected.

The fourth speaker and the Chairman of the Committee was Mr. Henley, an educator for years in the State of Alabama. He said that it was not what he could bring to the students but what the students could bring to the legislature of Alabama. He enlisted the cooperation of every student to the cause of education so that the committee might be able to put across a real educational program in the State of Alabama. "I know that the Teachers Colleges in the State of Alabama are the leaders in the educational world of the state. It is in these institutions that we are looking for teachers for our schools. These schools should produce students that are alert and ready to work and not produce a person that stands back and waits to see if something will come his way. Don't fool around and wait to see if you can get a job. Don't be backward, but push always forward."

Representative Johnston and Mr. J. M. Wood spoke a few words to the student-body to express their pleasure at being able to attend the exercises.

The assembly closed with the singing of the college song, led by Miss Ewing.

THE OLD MAN

Once there was an old, old man. He had two daughters. One was kind and the other was wicked. The kind daughter was named Lucy and the other one was named Mable. One day Lucy went to town to get some fruit. She only had 10 cents and she bought some fruit. When she came back she found her father dead. Her sister had killed him and had run away. She did not like her father.

It was getting dark and she was tired and fell down. A police who was walking along found her and picked her up and carried her to his house. A while later she was better and wanted to go home and live right. The police took her home. When she got there she found her sister down by her father's bed crying. She looked at her and said, "I wish I were dead", but they lived happy ever after.
